MARY WASHINGTON COLLEGE

Fredericksburg, Virginia

November 5, 1940

Dear Alumnae:

Several years ago while traveling in the west, I was constantly confronted with detour signs. One day, after going thru by-ways and around curves, I suddenly found myself looking down a beautiful, modern, spacious, highway. To the left stood a sign "Detour"—The Sign of Progress.

Here, at Mary Washington, I am constantly reminded of the sign because each day there are new signs of progress.

To those of us who find many changes and perhaps do not feel at home: be proud that so many wonderful changes have made our Alma Mater the College it is to-day.

Remember, too: our spirit still lingers on and our ideas and ideals which were so generously given are living in the hearts of the girls here to-day.

The Devils, the Goats—our symbols—to-day play an important part in the life of the students.

The Bullet, the Battlefield—our paper and annual—to-day are as eagerly sought after as they were in the days gone by.

We have, though, gone a step farther than being a student at Mary Washington. We have graduated; we claim the honor of being Alumnae.

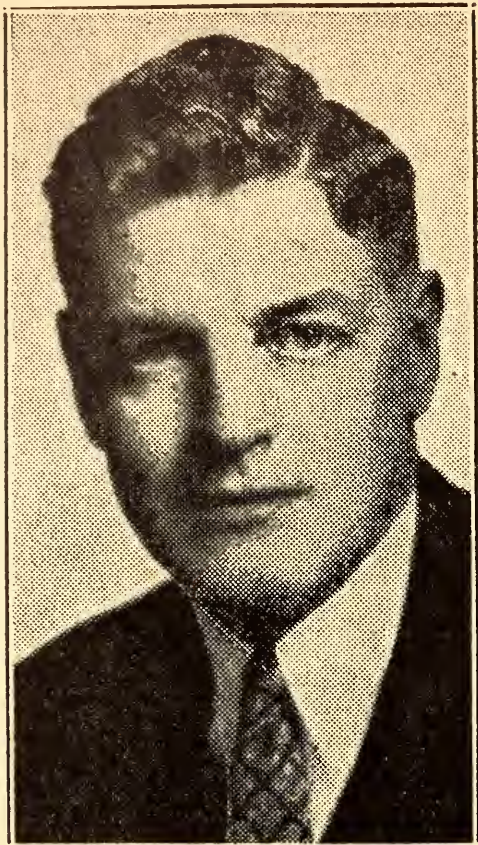

We also have the rare privilege of carrying on into the four corners of the world that spirit which typifies Mary Washington College—that spirit of "belonging on the Hill."

So, to you, sister Alumnae: keep alive that spark and lend your energies to build for Mary Washington an Alumnae Association which will carry on.

Sincerely,

Mildred P. Stewart

MILDRED STEWART.

MORGAN LAFAYETTE COMBS,
A. B., A. M., Ed. M., Ed. D.,
President
Mary Washington College

We, the Alumnae, pay tribute in this, the first printed issue of the Mary Washington College Alumnae News, to Dr. Morgan Lafayette Combs, in recognition of the scope of his dreams for our Alma Mater and of his ability to cause his dreams to be.

The increment of growth is not constant. Indeed there are marked fluctuations. A period of great increase is followed by one of rest—in order to catch breath, as it were. These successive phases sometimes take several years each, but the general rate carries a sustained movement as viewed from a far perspective. However, psychologists tell us there are some exceptions—the true genius children. Their bodies keep up with their superior intelligence. They sustain unusual physical growth in keeping with their mental advancement. We are forced to the conclusion that the same can hold true for institutions. Some grow a bit and rest; others continue to expand physically, intellectually, and spiritually at an unusual and extra rapid rate.

When considering the genius child we look to his parents first for the cause of this phenomenon, and then farther back in the geneological lines. In the case of an institution we look to the administrative head and to the previous leaders.

We find that Mary Washington College gives every evidence of such a genius institution. In the past there was a wise foresight that gave it glorious acres of wood and field, ravine, water course, hill side, and more important still, a loyal cooperativeness. In the immediate present we find a visionary Director who dreams of beauty on a vast scale in architecture and landscape, and who can forcefully utilize the advantages of terrain and natural resources to make such dreams come true. Mary Washington College is not the place it was twelve years ago when Morgan Lafayette Combs assumed the presidency of the institution. The College can hardly measure the great strides it has made under his direction, nor can it hope to repay the debt it owes to him for his dynamic leadership and guidance in the fulfillment of its destiny in the State. Only by wholehearted loyalty to his administration, by sincere cooperation with his plans and by genuine support of his ideals can we, the alumnae of the College, express in a small way our appreciation to Dr. Comb's untiring efforts for us.

Let us consider our physical growth:

(1) Frances Willard is a full-fledged dormitory, redecorated and beautifully appointed.

(2) Virginia Hall is completed to its H-shaped design, with lovely parlors and appointments, and a more than doubled (though now inadequate) library.

(3) Chandler Hall is architecturally perfect and a suitable memorial for the president whose name it bears.

(4) The old power house is surmounted by a hot house and nursery, a wise combination of beauty and utility.

(5) The lower reaches of the wooded slopes have developed modern tennis courts, athletic fields and outdoor swimming pool with picturesque fountain.

(6) Handsome Seacobeck Hall adorns the western rise overlooking

(7) The well-kept golf course.

(8) A woodman's cabin hides away among the trees for recreational use.

(9) The imposing Tri-Unit—three of the most complete and well-appointed dormitories in our state—faces northward across a grassy lawn that few of us oldsters dreamed possible.

(10) Westmoreland Hall, the senior dormitory, fulfills its office in dignity and beauty.

(11) George Washington Hall, Administration Building, is a marvel of perfect architectural balance and utility from the Hall of Mirrors and large auditorium to the spacious roof garden and chiming clock.

(12) The new library, under construction, in plan, will measure up to the standard of excellence and imposing line established by the aforementioned buildings.

(13) The projected Infirmary, (as yet an unsketched dream in the mind of Dr. Combs), will certainly bear the mark of his genius for proper setting, lineal beauty and gracious dignity.

(14) The enlarged campus to the west and south, the well-tended lawns, walks and driveways, the massive entrance gates at the foot of the Hill, the new ones which are planned and started for the Avenue C entrance, all bespeak the foresight, the active and careful thought of our President, Morgan Lafayette Combs.

Intellectually, we likewise find amazing growth:

(1) Our institution is now a Liberal Arts College, confirming the A. B. and B. S. degrees.

(2) The Commercial Department ranks among the very highest in the South.

(3) The Faculty, Staff and Supervisors have increased to approximately one hundred and sixty members with every department expanding its personnel.

(4) The entrance requirements have been raised to include only those students who finished in the upper section of their graduating classes. Even so, the enrollment for the current year is well over 1500.

Finally, there has been a spiritual resurgence:

(1) There is an active, self-supporting Alumnae Association.

(2) There are well-functioning local Alumnae Chapters throughout the state, maintaining contact with the College and loyally sending of the best to Mary Washington College.

(3) Above all, there is a "spirit" on the Hill—indescribable, ever present, all pervading.

So we find our genius child is maturing. May she never be a disappointment to her leading spirit, her president, Morgan Lafayette Combs.

"Only by wholehearted loyalty to his administration, by sincere cooperation with his plans and by genuine support of his ideals can we, the Alumnae of the College, express in a small way our appreciation of Dr. Combs' untiring efforts for us."—The Alumnae of Mary Washington College, Phoebe Enders Willis.

MILDRED PRUDEN STEWART

In June, we elected new officers for our Alumnae Association with Mildred Stewart as our President. We are justly proud of our choice.

As a student of the College, she was one of the most loyal campus leaders. She was President of the Student Government; Vice President of the Y. W. C. A.; Business Manager of "The Bullet"; College Cheer Leader; member of Variety Hockey Team and Varsity Basketball Team; Member of Class Teams in Hockey, Basketball, Baseball and Swimming; Senior Life Saver; member of the Dramatic Club. When she graduated she left a living memorial to herself in the music of our Alma Mater Song.

She did graduate work at Colorado State College and Columbia University, receiving her M. A. there in '36. She has done further graduate work at Columbia and at the New York School for Social Research. During the summer of 1936 she studied modern dance at Bennington (Vt.) School of the Dance under Martha Hill, Martha Graham, Doris Humphrey, Charles Weidman, Hayna Holm, Louis Horst and John Martin.

Her experience in her chosen field before coming back to our Alma Mater as a member of the Physical Education Faculty reads like the life work of several people together.

She was Director of Aquatics at our College the summer following her graduation. She was Director of Aquatics and Folk Dancing at Camp Sequoyah, Asheville, N. C., summer '29; teacher of Health and Physical Education in Andrew Jackson School, Kingsport, Tenn., 1928-1930; Instructor of Folk Dancing, Colorado State College, summer '32; Instructor in Modern Dancing, Folk Dancing, Major and Minor Sports, Swimming, Pageantry and Correctives in Florida State College 1930-1935; Head of Department of Physical Education, Florida State College summers '35 and '39; Instructor of Physical Education, Fieldston School of Ethical Culture, New York and Instructor in Corrective Physical Education and Recreational Club Work in the Horace Mann School 1935-36; Head of Physical Education Department, Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, 1936-37; Instructor of Physical Education, Texas State College for Women, summer '37; Director of Girls Physical Education in Vernon L. Davey Junior High, East Orange, N. J., 1937-38.

Mildred returned back to our Alma Mater during the session of 1938-39. She was made Acting Head of the Physical Education Department in '39-'40; and was promoted to the position of Head of the Department this session.

The College is quite fortunate to have such a talented, experienced person. Recently she was offered the position of Director of Health and Physical Education at the University, Lahore, India. This appointment was to have been made for three years, traveling expenses to India paid, duties to be assumed March 1, 1941.

The lure of adventure, as well as the promotion in rank and salary almost took Mildred away from us. Truly grateful are we that she decided, though, to remain at our Alma Mater as the Head of the Physical Education Department, and as the President of our Alumnae Association.

Campus News

The front cover carries a print of the architect's drawing of the new library building which is now under construction, and which is to be ready for the next session. The project, which will represent an outlay of about $175,000, is being financed by means of a State appropriation. J. F. Barbour & Sons, of Roanoke, Virginia, are the contractors. J. Binford Walford of Richmond is the architect. The library is to be located on the east side of the main drive through the campus between George Washington Hall and the Open Air Theatre. It will be of brick and will conform in design to other College units. The structure will have two stories in front with three in the rear. A special feature of the library will be a dome similar to the dome of the Congressional Library in Washington, D. C.

The Mary Washington College Band is a new feature of the music department and will be composed of thirty-nine members including Drum Major, Millie Devine, '44, and Twirlers, Jean Woolwine, '43, and Ailene Stevens, '44. Uniforms in the College colors, antique blue and white, will be worn—blue skirts, white jackets, and white boots.

The College Shoppe, greatest surprise of the year to the returning students, is a combination of the former Book Store and Tea Room, with noticeable additions to both. The Tea Room section serves plate lunches, sandwiches, and all manner of goodies from the lengthy soda fountain. Book Store section handles all books and classroom supplies, an extensive line of College jewelry, cosmetics, room decorations, and accessories and other trinkets dear to the heart of the College student. The red and black booths around the walls, the lunch tables in the center, the nickelodeon, the radio, the privilege of dancing there with dates—all go to make this the meeting place for students and faculty alike. Location: Chandler Hall.

Breakfast is served cafeteria style now from 7:30 to 8:20. Anyone may sleep through!

Dr. Richard Beale Davis resigned his position as a member of our English Department to accept a position at the University of South Carolina. Sincere regrets for our loss of him are mingled with our congratulations and best wishes to him on his promotion.

At Oak Hill Stables there is being built a clubhouse for the members of the Riding Club and all the other girls taking riding lessons. The clubhouse will consist of a dressing room and a club room which will be used for lectures, rainy-day activities, and other activities. Under the guidance of Mr. Russel Walthers, our new riding instructor, the Riding Club will sponsor four horse shows—three small shows and a large show in the Spring.

The Mary Washington Players got off to a fine start on their official season when over two hundred aspiring actresses tried out for membership in the Club.

The Glee Club has completed its organization. It is composed of 61 members, about 30 of whom are Freshmen. A series of concerts for the year have been planned. In addition to the Christmas Carol Program and the Spring Program, there are also tentative plans for a combined concert with the University of Virginia Glee Club.

Notable new addition to our Faculty is Mrs. Martha Snyder, former Director of Special Activities for the New York World's Fair, who comes to the College to organize the co-ordination of all phases of our College life so that each student may be helped to develop her own individual personality, grooming, charm, and poise to the fullest.

Another notable addition is William Luther McDermott, Assistant Professor of Art, who has set up his studio for sculpture and oil painting in Monroe Hall.

The Lyceum Program for the year will feature six performances, including the second appearance of the National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Kindler, on November 13. Another excellent feature of this year's program is the famous Monologist, Miss Cornelius Otis Skinner, who is scheduled for a performance January 31.

Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman and their dance group are scheduled for November 6. Mildred Stewart, our Alumnae President, studied the Modern Dance under these artists.

Other numbers scheduled are: November 25 — Ray Lev, pianist; March and April—the Philadelphia Ballet directed by Katherine Littlefield and Elizabeth Wysor. The Ballet will make two appearances during the two months but the dates have not been yet determined.

All the concerts will be given in the auditorium of George Washington Hall.

On January 17 and 18, 1941, the Virginia, North Carolina, and District of Columbia Branches of the National Vocational Guidance Association will hold a Regional Conference in Richmond, Virginia, at the Hotel John Marshall. The Conference will be of particular interest to teachers, principals, and superintendents. Mrs. Nannie Mae M. Williams, General Chairman of the Conference, extends a special invitation to the Alumnae of Mary Washington College to attend.

Betty Poole, ex '34, married Winston Athey during the summer.

A future May Queen, Carrie Randolph Lamond, was born August 1, 1940. Her mother, Jacquelin Smith Lamond, '37, was the first Faculty baby of our College and, as a student, one of our most beautiful May Queens.

Cecelia McLaughlin, '27, was married to Constantine Brown Aug. 9. "Cele" has appeared on the stage in New York and was with the Hedgerow Theatre at Rose Valley, Pa. until her resignation August 1. There she acted all kinds of roles—"from dominating dowagers to giggling girls." She writes, "We went touring through the middle West and deep South, and had a glorious time, plus lots of hard work."

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are living at 3305 Cleveland Ave., N. W., Washington. Mr. Brown is a writer and commentator. He completed his education in Berlin and Munich, where he studied political economy and philosophy. He is the political analyst for The Star in Washington and is co-author of "The American Diplomatic Game" published several years ago.

Jane Day, '40, spent a glorious summer as nature councillor at Camp Te Ata, Central Valley, New York. She taught six hours a day, managed a museum, conducted geology walks, went to conferences, sported an assistant, and slept with one hand on her shelf of nature keys and encyclopedia because the little campers thought she was a nature specialist and, being Jane, she wouldn't let them down. Now Jane is at 3634 Fort Ave., Lynchburg, Virginia teaching in the third grade of the West End School—"teaching everything from art and arithmetic to acrobatics."

Mrs. Charles Payne (Camilla Moody, '29), 3421 Mt. Pleasant St., N. W., Washington, D. C., credits her well-rounded education at Mary Washington for the development of her ability to deal with people and of her inherent esthetic sensibility—the two qualities which have contributed so much for her success since College days. Following her graduation she was supervisor of elementary teachers in Princess Anne County for one year. She left that position to travel with her husband, a construction engineer, for the next two years. During those years she became interested in Interior Designing, and took a decorating course at the University of Cincinnati. They settled in Washington in 1932. The depression plus the "no married teacher" ruling in Washington combined to turn her efforts into the Retail field. Camilla started as a sales person, learning the various stages of selling and the mechanics of the field—all of this with the Decorating Division her goal. She finally began that work in 1934 and is now Interior Decorator and Designer for Lansburgh's in Washington, and has a staff of four people. Her most outstanding decorating projects for the public view have been the Life Home of 1939 and the Wishmaker's House of 1940. Her chief interests are Dramatics, Theatre, Symphonies, and reading. The Paynes have a summer home at Bay Ridge Md., which is rapidly being made into a year round home.

Born to Mrs. Alfred A. Skeen (Elizabeth Collier), Norton, Virginia, a seven pound girl-baby, George Ann, August 4, 1940.

Married in June, 1940, Lucy Wilkerson, '40, to Vincent Burgess. They will live at 4101 Baltimore Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

Constance Pusey, '43, the daughter of Mrs. Daniel Weymouth (Charlotte Eugenia Rae, '15), is the very proud older sister of Diane, born June 6, 1940.
